SHADES OF BLUE AIRLINE SYMPOSIUM

November 4th & 5th, 2023
9:00 AM – 3:00 PM

1923 E. Avion Street, Hangar #34 next to Administration Building
Ontario, CA. 91761

Each year, hundreds of thousands of students graduate from high school seeking a pathway that will lead to a rewarding, fulfilling, and lucrative career that will last a lifetime.

Current aviation projections forecast a worldwide shortage of hundreds of thousands of airline pilots, flight attendants, customer service representatives, ground crew, aircraft mechanics, and technicians.

Shades of Blue Aviation and Space Pathway Program provides the solution to students' career aspirations and the shortage of qualified aviation personnel. The program provides a pathway for high school students to fill the aviation shortage at every level – inside and outside the airport and within the individual airlines.

In pursuit of our goal to create a pipeline to fulfill the need for aviation positions, Shades of Blue is planning to host a series of Airline Symposiums in different regions across the U.S. to introduce young adults aged 14 – 30 to a wide range of careers in aviation.

Airline Symposiums will serve two primary purposes:

- Airlines personnel will be able to meet and/or recruit interested candidates on-site.
- Individuals interested in aviation and aeronautics will receive information on various careers available and qualification requirements.

This FREE airline symposium will include:

Presentations/Speakers

- NASA astronauts
- Flight attendants
- Ground crew
- Special Guests – Aviation industry
